Building women and girls’ global meaningful participation in the High Level Meeting on AIDS

The ATHENA Network and the Global Coalition on Women and AIDS (GCWA) initiated a global virtual consultation1 with regional partners in order to ensure the broadest possible engagement and representation of women and girls wherever possible in the processes leading up to the High Level Meeting on AIDS in June 2011 – especially women living with and affected by HIV, and other key populations of women, who often lack platforms for priority issues to be raised and heard. The virtual consultation as a new platform has, for the first time in the 30 year history of the AIDS response, brought together women in (and from) many different areas and with multiple identities in a personal and political capacity to speak to the successes, challenges, and key lessons learned through the AIDS response since the 2001 Declaration of Commitment on HIV/AIDS and in the effort to achieve Universal Access. This virtual consultation was launched on 01 March 2011 and has gathered responses from more than 700 women from over 95 countries around the world.

The focal areas for the consultation were defined by 4 criteria: 1) Centrality of women’s rights to the success of the AIDS response; 2) Importance for women, girls, and gender equality; 3) Ability to speak to the future, specifically to move us toward realizing all the Millennium Development Goals; and, 4) Political opportunity to highlight an issue that has not received adequate attention to date in efforts to address women, girls, and gender equality in the context of HIV and AIDS.

An archive of the survey, including translations into 9 languages, is available at http://www.womeneurope.net/index.php/page/SURVEY_on_HLM

1 Economic empowerment of all women must involve meaningful and active participation of sex workers and transgender women.

TOP PRIORITIES FOR POSITIVE CHANGE

as identified by women from across Asia and the Pacific toward achieving Universal Access

1: Inclusive and holistic prevention, treatment, care, and support for women in all of their diversity
• Expand access to comprehensive health care, including quality HIV care, the sustainable provision of anti-retroviral therapy, and treatment for co-infections.
• Ensure gender sensitive and non-discriminatory programming and services, including services for women who use drugs, women living with HIV, and key affected women who face stigma and discrimination when accessing sexual and reproductive health and HIV services.
• Ensure that information and education materials are accessible and user friendly.
• Expand access to voluntary testing, including pre- and post-test counselling, beyond so-called ‘high-risk’ groups, and beyond ante-natal care services.

2: Solidarity
• Eliminate stigma and discrimination against women and girls – in particular women and girls living with HIV, and key affected women and girls.
• Decriminalize HIV transmission, homosexuality, and sex work.

3: Gender equality
• Address gender inequalities, including through economic empowerment and income generation, protection of inheritance and property rights, equal opportunities in employment and education, and appropriate and adequate representation of women in consultations.
• Ensure gender sensitivity in HIV-related policy and programming.

4: Safety
Achieving an enabling environment for women and girls and eliminating gender-based violence through the promotion of women’s human rights, with particular emphasis on the following:

3: Gender equality

4: Safety

5: Education, including sexuality education
• Expand women’s and girls’ access to education through a multi-sectoral approach including comprehensive sexuality education, both in and outside of school settings, and especially in rural areas and among indigenous women and girls.
• Comprehensive sexuality education should cover issues related to gender, sexuality, sexual and reproductive health, HIV, and rights.
• Expand women’s and girls’ access to legal education and literacy.

It is important to note positive changes that have occurred over the last 10 years, particularly in relation to access to health services, including SRH services to women living with HIV.”
Concluding Comments

The virtual consultation has been developed with the ethos and intent of democratizing international processes – and to provide a vehicle whereby women from all walks of life and in all regions of the world can have their say on the achievements, challenges, and opportunities for change as the global community prepares for the High Level Meeting on AIDS. What we have learned through the development of the consultation and through our analysis of what women are saying is simply that women seek and are thirsty to be engaged and viewed as equal, active stakeholders and as agents of change rather than as subordinate, passive recipients. The responses we have received demonstrate that women want to enjoy opportunity, independence, sexual and physical autonomy – and as such, women seek an AIDS response that is holistic, shared sector-wide, gendered, comprehensive, equitable, and deeply rooted in human rights. Women all over the globe are taking initiative and are on the frontlines of the response, implementing programs with their own capacity, and bringing about change in their communities.

The most affected must be most central to the response, and as history has shown us repeatedly where true social transformation has taken place, if these same women’s visions and aspirations were adequately supported, then the aspirations of us all would fall into place.

The ATHENA Network and the Global Coalition on Women and AIDS acknowledge and appreciate our outstanding team whose collaboration, investment, and shared expertise is making this virtual consultation possible.

Methodology: We have identified these issues from an open-ended question on the survey tool of the virtual consultation for participants to articulate their top three priority asks for positive change. We categorized the open-ended responses in line with specific areas of the 2001 Declaration of Commitment on HIV/AIDS and the 2006 Political Declaration.
